

Capture the Flag Competition Fall 2004

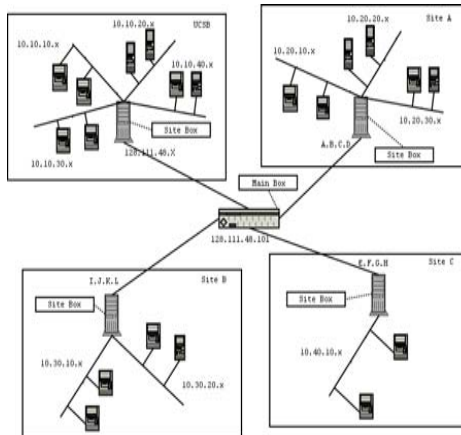

Abstract

Each team was given a VMware image containing a Linux server installation. The server provided a number of services. The services had a number of undisclosed vulnerabilities, which were included by the contest organizers. The goal of each team was to maintain the set of services available and uncompromised throughout the contest. Each team attempted to compromise other teams' services. During the contest a scoring system kept track of what services were available, and which services were compromised.
